

Chris Bown - Partner

Organisational Transformation and Improvement

Chris has over 35 years' experience in senior board level leadership roles in the UK National Health Service, the last 17 as a CEO. He has practical experience in leading organisations through significant change and service transformation to deliver improvements for patients with a focus on whole system integration, partnership and transformation.

Chris' work as a permanent and freelance Chief Executive of hospitals in the UK along with advisory assignments for the NHS and in the Caribbean region has equipped him with a wide range of leadership skills that are often put to use in very challenging environments where he has developed a strong track record of success.

Chris chaired the largest NHS provider led review of staff terms and conditions including speaking at national level conferences on workforce transformation and presented at national level conferences on the service implications for NHS mergers in the context of UK competition law. He has worked at regional level on the benefits realisation of a mental health and community services merger and undertook a confidential primary care governance review for NHS England.
